

Working towards great version control for content creators

Hi.

A screenshot paints a thousand words.

Usersnap

Usersnap is the most efficient feedback tool for your Website.

Get screenshots directly from your readers, customers and users.
Usersnap helps you to get visual feedback easily.

Usersnap helps you to get feedback on your sites. You can create annotated screenshots without installing anything. A small snippet of code on the website creates a feedback button. Your users may highlight, blackout and use sticky notes to give visual feedback which is then sent to you! Usersnap is like the Google+ Feedback tool for your sites.

My ~~problem~~ challenge with WordPress and version control

... despite how crucial GitHub is to the developer toolbox, I'm constantly wondering why the platform is limited to just code.

Loren Burton on how he's building GitHub for Writers

I don't want to build a GitHub
'for everyone else'.
I'm lazy.

... there can be multiple pull requests and multiple versions of the code floating around simultaneously, but everything eventually ends up in single place (master branch).

From Collaborative Coding to Wedding Invitations: GitHub Is Going Mainstream

THE Wired article.

The open, collaborative workflow we have created for software development is so appealing that it's gaining traction for non-software projects that require significant collaboration.
